

Abstract

The objective of this thesis, "Marital quality : A case of government officials of Bangkok metropolitant were

1. to study marital quality in dimensions of marital satisfaction

2. to study the factors effecting marital satisfaction

A sample of 291 was randomly drawn from government officials of Bangkok metropolitant

The results of this study are as follows :

Relative deprivation revealed the highest relationship to marital satisfaction, followed by role consensus, effective communication, companionship, having child, support from significant others (relatives) marital quality of parent, period of marry, support from significant others (parent) and Age at marry. In addition, no significant age homogamy, education homogamy, period dating, family income, household composition